

Invitation to Tender

Aparajita – Political Empowerment of Women
Phase 3: 2018 - 2022

15.05.2018

1 Summary

The aim of the Invitation to Tender is to identify National Partner Organizations which have the adequate competence and experience to implement the 3rd Phase of the project “APARAJITA - Political Empowerment of Women” of the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC). Applicant organizations are invited to express their interest and are asked to submit a presentation of their organization, their respective capacities, experiences and networks established over a longer time period in specific geographical areas of the country.

The National Partner Organisations will work with HELVETAS Swiss Intercooperation, which, as Intermediary Agent, is responsible for the overall management of the project and the facilitation of an alliance of National Partner Organizations, which will be in charge of the implementation of the project activities. The National Partner Organizations will be responsible for the planning and implementation of the detailed activities in close collaboration with HELVETAS Swiss Intercooperation. They will be responsible for the monitoring of progress to attain the project’s outputs and outcomes, and they will have to invest into the relationship between each other and act as a unified alliance for the political empowerment of women in Bangladesh. The Applicants are not permitted to form a consortia or sub-contract the services, and need to be national organizations registered with the NGO Affairs Bureau.

The duration of the 3rd Phase of the Aparajita project is 4 years and foreseen to start in November 2018. During the project preparations until end of September 2018 the selected National Partner Organizations will be involved and consulted during the project design and planning.

The project will geographically concentrate and work in 6 cluster areas (Rangpur, Rajshahi, Sylhet, Khulna, Barisal, Chittagong).

The Applicants are invited to express their interest for one or more of these 6 cluster areas (Lots). However, one Applicant will not be awarded with more than two Lots:

Lot 1: Rangpur

Lot 2: Rajshahi

Lot 3: Sylhet

Lot 4: Khulna

Lot 5: Barisal

Lot 6: Chittagong

The targeted Districts, and the expected numbers of Upazilas and Unions to be covered, are listed in Annex 1. For each Lot the Applicants must demonstrate established presence and outreach capacity in the respective cluster area, and a strong track record in terms of access to and acceptance by the communities. Applicants may propose alternative Upazilas as long as they allow a concentration of resources and follow the criteria listed in Chapter 2.3. The list of Upazilas and number of Unions to be covered under each Lot will be finalized during the project planning with involvement of the selected National Partner Organizations.

2 Background of the Project

2.1 Context

While many development indicators have been encouraging, securing long-term development and stability may depend to a large extent on political developments in Bangladesh. Bangladesh has a turbulent political past, but has always had a tradition of respect for dissent. This seems to have eroded in the recent past with politics becoming more and more polarized and rising violent extremism.

The state of women in Bangladesh has significantly improved over the past years. Bangladesh is a signatory to the Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) and the Beijing Platform for Action (BPfA). Bangladesh has developed a National Women Development Policy (2011), which provides directions for women's participation in all political processes and institutions at the national and local levels. Despite the existing policies and legal provisions, women have not yet gained significant representation in national and particularly in sub-national political institutions, nor influence in decision making of the political parties. This is mostly due to the patriarchal social structures reinforced by religious, economic and political norms, which associate leadership with men, discourage women from entering the political arena and view political positions for women rather as a privilege than a right. The state of women's political participation at central government level is much better than at sub-national level. Women remain heavily under-represented in local government institutions both in number and influence. This can, among others, be explained by distinguishing between supply- and demand-side factors for women's political representations. Supply-side factors include (i) resources, like time, money, skills, talent and experiences; and (ii) motivation, such as drive, training, networking, mentoring, ambition and interest in politics. Demand-side factors include the (i) legal framework, enabling women's political engagement and (ii) elites, men, political parties and government institutions.

2.2 Development Goals & Theory Change

The Aparajita project will be contributing to the objectives of the Swiss Cooperation Strategy 2018-2021 in the domain of "Democratic Governance". It will contribute to an equitable governance system at the local level, which would allow citizens to hold institutions accountable and voice their interest. By focusing on women's political empowerment, the project will contribute to the new approach taken in the Swiss Cooperation Strategy to focus more on the empowerment of citizens, in this case women to participate in political processes and inclusive development planning, thereby contributing to institution-building

The project will be guided by the understanding that women's political empowerment among others aims at (i) the equal participation, representation and leadership of women within government institutions, political parties and civil society organizations; (ii) women's free exercise of the authority inherent in those positions; (iii) and the development, implementation and enforcement of policies and laws that address women's rights, positions and priorities.

The overall development goal is that Aparajita contributes to equal participation, representation and leadership of women within local government institutions. Its three outcomes read as follows:

Outcome 1: Potential and elected women representatives effectively participate in local government institutions and local governance processes in the selected districts.

Outcome 2: Elites, men and local institutions support effective inclusion of women in local political life in the selected districts.

Outcome 3: An improved policy and legal framework and attention to hindering and enabling factors at national levels accelerate political empowerment of women.

The Theory of Change of the project is that capacity development of women aspirants, candidates and elected women will result in more women to be trained, educated, mentored, resourced, networked and therefore to have more capacity to engage effectively in local governance. This then increases the number of women that are represented in local governance and thus strengthens the supply side. This will lead to changes in the legal and policy framework that further enhances the opportunities for political engagement of women. If the representation of women in political office is becoming more common, this will positively influence the considerations and perception of local institutions (e.g. political parties), men and local elites, and also impact on culture, norms and attitudes in the broader population. Furthermore, by directly engaging with elites, men, political parties and government institutions at local level and addressing the legal framework through advocacy work, the project will further enhance the demand-side for more effective political engagement of women. In doing so, further impeding factors in the prevailing culture, gender-norms and social attitudes will be reduced, thereby enabling women's political empowerment. Finally, if the attitudes in the broader population towards women in office are positively impacted, this will also increase women's aspiration to being elected into office, thus closing the cycle.

The primary target groups are aspirants, candidates and elected women representatives at the Union and Upazila levels. Specific attention will be paid to women who have currently no access to decision-making power from politically, socially and economically marginalized sections of the society in the respective locality. The secondary target group will be local elites, men, (local outlets of) political parties and sub-national and central governments.

2.3 Geographic Focus

The project geographically works in 6 cluster areas (Rangpur, Rajshahi, Sylhet, Khulna, Barisal, Chittagong) concentrating geographically its activities and resources to optimize the support to aspirants, candidates and elected women representatives, and so to allow more women to benefit from proximate women's networks. The list of Districts and Upazilas is provided in Annex 1. The criteria for choosing the Districts, Upazilas and Unions are the following:

- Diversity of political parties' influence: In order to maintain impartiality.
- Prevalence of minority groups: By choosing working areas with higher prevalence of minority groups the project intends to contribute to women from these groups gaining voice and reclaiming spaces to contribute to democratic, inclusive and accountable local governance.
- Poverty level: Since the project has a specific focus on the poor and disadvantaged, the working area is chosen considering incidences of poverty and presence of disadvantaged communities.
- Disaster vulnerability: There is often a correlation between geographical areas with high disaster vulnerability and high poverty. This aspect is taken into account in the final selection of the project area.
- Accessibility: Since the project aims at reaching many Unions with limited financial resources, it is important that the working areas are fairly easily accessible for project staff.

2.4 Financial Volume of the Project

The estimated volume of funds is estimated to be max. BDT 15 Mio per year per cluster area for a duration of 4 years. National Partner Organizations' budget volumes will depend on the number of Upazilas and Unions covered in the respective cluster areas. These will be reconfirmed and finally decided on during detail planning of the project and before project start.

4. The Mandate

4.1 Intervention Strategies

The intervention strategies of the National Partner Organizations of Aparajita will be two-pronged:

Capacity Building: Capacity development with the aim of empowerment will be the core methodological approach of the project. The National Partner Organizations will engage to build skills of aspirant/potential/elected Women Representatives, allowing them to enhance their experiences in effective political participation. This will be done predominantly by mentoring aspirant/potential/elected Women Representatives, and by providing practice-oriented trainings. National Partner Organizations will also involve actors like local elites, political party and local government representatives, rising awareness and influencing their attitude and behavior towards P/EWR and their commitment to actively provide more space for aspirant/potential/elected Women Representatives to effectively participate in local governance affairs. The National Partner Organizations will also support aspirant/potential/elected Women Representatives to develop their local networks among each other, with community groups but also with to local male elites, and foster exchange between aspirant/potential/elected Women Representatives across Union and Upazila boundaries.

Advocacy and lobbying: Since capacity development is not sufficient to achieve the aims of political empowerment of women the National Partner Organisations will engage in advocacy and lobbying activities. They project will support aspirant/potential/elected Women Representatives to engage in such activities at the local, district and national level. The National Partner Organisations will also engage themselves jointly in such activities mostly at district and national levels. Much of this work will aim at improving the existing legal framework, enforcing favorable legal provisions and rallying support within political parties at national level for enhancing women's political participation.

4.2 Main Tasks and Responsibilities of the National Partner Organisations

The National Partner Organizations will be responsible for planning and implementation of the detailed activities in close collaboration with HELVETAS Swiss Intercooperation. They will be responsible for the monitoring of progress to attaining the project's outputs and outcomes, and they will have to invest in the relationship between each other and act as a unified alliance for the empowerment of women in Bangladesh.

Outcome 1: Through Outcome 1 the National Partner Organisations will build the capacity and agency of women leaders (from eligible to elected) within the political arena. Issues of "motivation" and "resources" are closely intertwined. It is assumed that constraints in regard to motivation and resources can be overcome through the combination i) of achieving an economic status that allows to invest into time for civic and political activities, ii) of knowledge and skills on practices of good local governance and representational politics, and iii) of expanding support networks for emerging or elected women leaders. Core activities will include:

Economic empowerment:

- Mobilisation of women leaders of/in economic interest groups, and linking of women (political) leaders to economic interest groups

- Development of election strategies and fundraising networks for electoral campaigns in collaboration with local party women wings and support groups, incl. training on fund raising
- Awareness rising for women economic empowerment at family and community level with committed local leaders and change agents

Capacity building on local governance and representational politics

- Information campaigns and training programmes targeting women leaders and councillors on roles and responsibilities and the functioning the local governance system and the system of representational democracy
- Skills based training for aspirant/candidate women leaders in campaigning, media management, public speaking, meeting procedures, etc.
- Development of mentoring programme for women leaders by female Parishad members and former councillors

Development of social networks and constituencies

- Strengthening/upgrading of informal women's networks to district and national level (political leadership)
- Incentivising of local political parties to create space for women leaders to mobilise intra-party alliances and constituencies
- Linking of women leaders through online networking apps (e.g. WhatsApp, Viber) and other social media and platforms
- Collaboration with election working groups and local party leaders to facilitate access to constituency

Outcome 2: Through Outcome 2 the National Partner Organisations will influence attitudes of political institutions and local leaders towards greater space for women in the political sphere. It is assumed that the constraints on the demand side will be addressed i) through the collaboration with "champions" in the respective formal and informal institutions, who will be supported in sensitising their organisations and informal networks on the beneficial aspects of women's political participation, ii) through promoting democratic spaces for women's participation in local governance processes, iii) through the catalyzation of inter-party issue based political dialogue, and iv) through cooperation with and the accompaniment of the political institutions along the electoral cycle. Core activities will include:

Sensitisation for women's political empowerment

- Sensitisation and coaching of potential men champions and committed leaders on rights and obligations related to women political empowerment (e.g. on rights issues and national and international commitments, benefits of women political participation, etc.)

- Facilitation of platforms for dialogue between citizens and local party structures with participation of women leaders and representatives
- Sensitisation and orientation of local party leaders across the political spectrum on how to promote improved representation of women in their parties and in the democratic process (e.g. RPO, governance structures)
- Incentivising local parties to facilitate space for public discussions around women political agendas
- Facilitation of inter-party dialogue to build up female constituencies around women's issues on political agendas

Accompaniment throughout the electoral cycle

- Support for profiling of women candidates through different means of communication
- Capacity building of women candidates on the electoral process (incl. conflict and security management)
- Capacity building of mentors and local political parties to coach women candidates through the nomination process
- Collaboration with and among local political parties to establish and agree on code of conduct in the election process (in relation to women participation)
- Gender-sensitive ant-violence training for local government, election official and law enforcement, and support for preventive initiatives and measures against election related (gendered based) violence
- Engagement in election day observation and reporting

Outcome 3: Through Outcome 3 the National Partner Organisations will address structural constraints in the political and electoral systems which restrain women from participating in the democratic process. It is expected that issues like the implementation of the 33% rule (RPO), the low level of representation of women through general seats, or the need for clarification/strengthening of roles and responsibilities of women members in the local councils will be addressed through the following mechanisms: i) Policy analysis and dialogue, ii) alliances for advocacy, iii) social media and communication strategies, and iv) knowledge sharing and learning. Core activities will include:
